

Dragan Vasilev, PhD

Research title/Position: Full professor

Affiliation: University of Belgrade, Faculty of Veterinary medicine, Department for food hygiene and technology

Occupation field: Meat hygiene and technology

Short biography: Dragan Vasilev is a full professor at the Department of food hygiene and technology at the Faculty of Veterinary Medicine University of Belgrade. His main research includes quality and safety of functional meat products, traditional meat products, Trichinella meat inspection and risk assessment, as well as meat safety and quality in general, and was engaged in several scientific research projects funded by the Ministry of Science, Technological Development and Innovation of the Republic of Serbia. He is a representative of Veterinary Chamber of Serbia (VCS) in the Union of European Veterinarian Hygienists (UEVH), a member of the expert board of the VCS, a president of the Section for Food Hygiene and Technology of the Serbian Veterinary Society.