

Mirjana Lukić, PhD

Research Title: Research Associate

Position: Deputy of the Head of Department of Sensory and Physical Research and Parasitology

Affiliation: Institute of Meat Hygiene and Technology - Belgrade

Occupation field: Sensory aspects of food quality; Nutrition quality of beef meat; Influence of nutrition on the quality of beef meat

Short biography: Dr Mirjana Lukic is a Research associate with more than 15 years of experience in applied research in the field of quality of meat. Professional work encompasses sensory evaluation animal origin food, education and testing employees in the Meat industry in the field of sensory evaluation meat products, participation in sensory panels during the development of new meat products.

The current research interest is related to the development of nutritional regimens to increase the nutritional and health value of beef lipids, as well as the influence of nutrition on the sensory aspects of beef quality.