

Nataša Kilibarda, PhD

Research Title: Associate Professor

Affiliation: Singidunum University – Belgrade, Serbia

Occupation field: Food Safety, Food Microbiology, Laboratory Quality Control

Short biography: Nataša Kilibarda received a Ph.D. in food hygiene and technology in 2010 from the Faculty of veterinary medicine, University of Belgrade. Kilibarda has extensive experience in biotechnology and microbiology, including detecting, isolating, identifying, and cultivating various food microorganisms. She has expertise in complex microbiological tests, modification of standard microbiological testing, cryopreservation and bacterial titers preparation, assessment of productivity, and developing alternative methods in food microbiology. She is technical assessor for SRPS ISO/IEC 17025 engaged by the Accreditation Body of Serbia (assessment activities – microbiological, sensory, and biochemical examination of food and feed, and sampling of food and feed for microbiological testing).