

Vladimir Drašković, PhD

Research title: Research Assistant

Position: Teaching Assistant

Affiliation: University of Belgrade, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine - Belgrade, Serbia

Occupation field: Animal Hygiene, Biotechnology

Short biography: Dr Vladimir Drašković is Teaching Assistant at the Department of Animal Hygiene, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine (University of Belgrade). He is responsible for running practical classes of the courses Animal Hygiene and Herd Health, Preventive Veterinary Medicine, and Breeding and Care of Farm Animals. Since 2014, he's been involved in the project of the Ministry of Science, Technological Development and Innovation of the Republic of Serbia (III 46002; Contract number 451-03-47/2023-01/200143) and published more than 20 scientific and conference papers of which 10 were in SCI journals. His main field of expertise is the development and application of molecular diagnostic techniques in the diagnosis and monitoring of farm infectious diseases, the implementation of biosecurity measures on farms, the promotion of preventive health and animal welfare, and all with the aim of obtaining safe and high-quality food of animal origin.