

Nikola Betić, PhD

Research title: Research assistant

Position: Research assistant

Affiliation: Institute of Meat Hygiene and Technology – Belgrade, Serbia

Occupation field: Food Safety, Foodborne parasites

Short biography: Nikola Betić graduated from the Faculty of Veterinary Medicine in Belgrade. He has been employed at the Institute of Meat Hygiene and Technology in Belgrade since 2017. He completed his PhD thesis at the Faculty of Veterinary Medicine University of Belgrade in 2023. He is working at the Department for Scientific-Technical Cooperation. His area of interest revolves around food safety and foodborne parasites, with a particular focus on the detection of Toxoplasma gondii in the pig meat production chain.